DETAILED ACTION

Claims 6, 7, 9, 13-15 have been withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 9/15/2005.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 3, 8, 10, and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Feldstein (US patent no. 4,795,429). Feldstein discloses all the claimed features of applicant's invention as illustrated below. Further, Feldstein discloses the support structure is made of polymeric material or plastic (col. 5, line 40).

Claims 1, 3, and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nebel (US patent no. 6,930,244). Nebel discloses all the claimed features of applicant's invention.

Regarding claim 3, Nebel discloses the support structure is made of plastic.

Claims 19 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Costello (US patent no. 4,998,343). Costello discloses a device (18) for holding a plurality of associated cables (16) in the device comprising: defined orientation relative to each other, a support structure that defines a plurality cable retaining locations (4) each adapted to receive and releasably retain an associated cable, wherein the cable retaining locations are arranged in a pattern that corresponds to a pattern of connectors an associated input/output interface device to which the cables are adapted to be connected so as to provide a one-to-one correspondence between each cable retaining location and each connector of the associated input/output device (Col. 2, lines 50-55); wherein the cable retaining locations of the support structure are adapted for alignment with connection axes of connectors of the associated input/output interface device.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nebel (US patent no. 6,930,244). Nebel discloses all the claimed features of applicant's invention as illustrated above except for making the flexible retainer and support structure of one piece construction. To make components of one piece construction is old and well-known in the art. It has the known advantage of eliminating assemblage of parts. Nebel himself teaches this in his secondary embodiment (figures 9-11) where a retainer strip (103) and support structure (105) are of one piece construction. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skilled in the art to have modify the Nebel's flexible retainer and support structure such that they are of one piece construction to eliminate assemblage of parts as taught by Nebel himself.

Claims 4, 5, 12, and 16-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nebel (US patent no. 6,930,244) in view of Hall et al (US patent no. 3,731,363). Nebel discloses all the claimed features of applicant's invention as illustrated above except for making the support structure of transparent material. To make support structures transparent is old and well-known in the art. Such provision of transparency permits viewing through the panel as demonstrated by Hall which teaches providing a transparent circuit board with rows and columns of holes (8) for receiving wire leads for viewing purposes (col. 2, line 50). To make the Nebel's support structure transparent would have been obvious to one of ordinary skilled in the art. Such modification provides the known advantage of viewing through the panel as taught by Hall. Furthermore, it would have been obvious to have modified the support structure of Nebel such that rows and columns of line receiving locations or holes are provided for receiving multiple wires as taught by Hall.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The remaining art of record demonstrate various line holders.
